About this feature

Title of feature: Ockwell in Snow

Excerpt: Contemporary garden in winter snow, designed by Andy Sturgeon with a framework of oak cubes leading through borders to a riverside deck

Gallery text: My garden, designed by Andy Sturgeon, has a framework of 53 English oak cubes that run through a bed planted with evergreen box, pittosporum and hebes, chosen for their rounded winter forms. Planted to be enticing in every season, winter flowers are a passion, especially hellebores, miniature irises and witch hazels. By summer, the garden is transformed into a froth of allium, Granny's bonnets and lilies, whilst autumn closes with a Jimi Hendrix style purple haze of Verbena bonariensis, offset against golden halo of grasses. The backdrop of the river is the one constant.
